Breaking Curses

Two curses that I have recognized within myself from the past and within my family are disobedience and immorality. My grandmother as well as my mother and many other family members were not followers of Christ when they were younger. This led to them not saving themselves for marriage, getting pregnant out of wedlock, and being in abusive relationships. I grew up from the age of 7 knowing God and going to church however I found myself backsliding at 18 and following my own desires. I too ended up losing my purity and finding myself in an abusive relationship. It was not until a few years later that I was able to come back to Jesus and rededicate my life. I then was able to renounce these generational curses in freedom classes and at the altar. The curses of disobedience and immorality are now broken over my life in Jesus Name! I continue to pray for my other family members and even over my own future family.
