A while back while taking the freedom class at the church I was able to get set free from a soul tie. I went up after the class to receive inner healing and deliverance. Although this was from a relationship a few years ago, I was still holding onto the pain from it. It was not until I asked for prayer that I was able to start the healing process. I was able to forgive my ex boyfriend for cheating as well as for the sexual, physical, and verbal abuse I endured throughout the relationship. I was even able to forgive myself for the bad choices I had made in my past which led me into such a relationship. After receiving prayer and breaking the soul tie, I was able to see what really was in front of me. His begging and crying for me back did not work anymore like it used to. I was finally able to leave the relationship behind and not feel bad about it. I tried many times in the past to leave him but could not, this time was different though. It was a long journey of healing and forgiveness and took about two years but I am thankful to God that I have been freed and forgiven.
